City Initiates Discussion with WSSC On Greenbriar Sewage Pumping Station

by Virginia Beauchamp

A letter dated August 20 from Greenbelt Mayor Gil Weidenfeld to Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission Chairman Lawrence L. Brooks, Sr. has asked for "an early meeting" of WSSC with Greenbriar residents and the city council. The letter follows a unanimous council decision at a special meeting on August 18, with full support of the board of the Greenbriar Recreation Association, who also sent a letter, to seek WSSC take-over and operation of the private sewage pumping station currently serving the condominium development.

This decision was precipitated by an event on August 14 when breakdown in one of the pumps, occurring in such a way as to bypass the automatic alarm signal, resulted in a flood of raw sewage through four apartments and some storage rooms in the development. This was the third, but far and away the most serious, breakdown of the private pumping station. Until an auxiliary pump could be installed, water for the 1,193 apartments in the development had to be turned off for 22 hours.

The Weidenfeld letter cites efforts made in December 1975 to seek WSSC operation of the pumping station — action which was several times "deferred." In January 1976, Weidenfeld wrote, the city council "urged the Commission to seek a solution that would serve best the public interest and the homeowners' interests." Council felt then that the station should be upgraded by the developer and then operated and maintained by WSSC. "I am not aware that the Commission ever considered the city's request," the Weidenfeld letter states.

Instead, in April 1976 WSSC and the Greenbriar developer, Alan Kay, signed an agreement in which the Commission "relinquished claims for payment against the developer" and in which the developer agreed to upgrade, operate and maintain the pumping station according to WSSC specifications—an obligation which has since been assumed by the condominium owners. According to Steve Bupp, condominium manager, a recent title search revealed that the land on which the pumping station sits is owned by the WSSC. The question of who owns the control building, valve vault and dry wells remains unanswered.

History Researched

Council and the city staff have had to do some searching through old records since the August 18, 1980 meeting to recall specific details of the long controversial history of the Greenbriar private sewage treatment plant and later the pumping station. At the meeting all professed to have only "hazy" memories of the pumping station. The sewage treatment plant had dominated the agenda of many city council meetings from 1971 to 1974 until the first residents moved in on October 22, 1974. The pumping station became a major topic, as the Weidenfeld letter indicates, in late 1975-early 1976.

The present Greenbriar pumping station issue is a legacy of the moratorium on sewage connections imposed in May 1970 by State Chief Health Officer Dr. Neil Solomon. During this period no new sewer authorizations were permitted until the Western Branch sewage treatment plant was expanded. (Completion date was slated for 1973 but construction dragged on until 1977.) Only pre-moratorium approvals were allowed.

Greenbriar developer Alan Kay, whose project was by then financially committed, sought to continue in spite of the moratorium. From the start he ran into snags. In July 1971 the project was denied a pumping station using the Anacostia drainage basin. An alternate plan to transfer sewage from the Anacostia to the Western Branch was unsuccessful, as well as the attempt to transfer pre-moratorium sewage rights from another property to Greenbriar. Studies by Kay's consultants claiming that there would be increased sewage capacity with the addition of chemical treatment was not accepted at the time. Additionally, new county regulations prohibited the issuance of building permits, even of a conditional nature, until sewer service could be guaranteed.

City Opposition

Throughout this period the city, supported by a citizens' group, Save Our Community Committee, opposed the idea of the plant. Kay persisted, however, eventually gaining approvals from various federal, state, and county agencies involved. NASA had to grant an easement to carry a pipe across its property. The Environmental

WSSC PREPARING REPORT

In response to letters from the city and the Greenbriar Recreation Association, the staff of WSSC will prepare a report for the Commission dealing with the private Greenbriar pumping station. In its evaluation, the staff will study the station's present condition, determine if any upgrading is required and work out possible financial arrangements before any decision is made for WSSC to agree to take over the station. A meeting among the parties is also expected to take place.

The private Greenbriar station is considered unique because it serves so many residential units—1,193. According to WSSC spokesman Arthur Brigham, the condominium boom led the Commission several years ago to establish procedures for WSSC's take-over of on-site systems at the request of the owners. This was necessary because of difficulties management was encountering with maintenance.

In February 1980, the Greenbriar Recreation Association, the umbrella organization for Phases I, II and III and Glen Oaks apartment units, asked WSSC what it would charge to maintain and operate the station. After learning that a $25,000 yearly fee would only cover checking the station — any repairs or replacements to be borne by the condominium owners—GRA opted to retain operation and maintenance of the station.

J. Churchill Named Precinct Chairman

John W. Churchill, Lynbrook Ct., was appointed Precinct Chairman of North End precinct (21-6) by the Republican Central Committee for Prince Georges County.

An Associate Professor of Recreation at the University of Maryland, Churchill has served as a member of the Prince Georges County Park and Planning Commission for eight years.

Republican workers in the six greater Greenbelt precincts are approaching the mid-point in the county-wide Neighbor-to-Neighbor Fund Drive for expenses, such as the printing and mailing of sample ballots for the November election.

For further information call Eunice E. Coxon, Greenbelt Area Chairman, 345-2756.

Need Strings, Woodwinds

The Greenbelt Chamber Orchestra is seeking string and woodwind players of all levels of ability. Interested persons should call John Ward or Trix Whitehall at 345-4487 in the evening. Rehearsals are held every other Sunday at the Greenbelt Youth Center from 2:30 to 5 p.m. The next rehearsal will be Sept. 21 in the multipurpose room.

CPR Classes To Begin

How many Greenbelt residents have lost a loved one from a heart attack, choking, drowning, drug overdose, suffocation, auto accidents, allergic reactions and electric shock? The best defense is to learn C.P.R. (Cardio-Pulmonary Resuscitation). Learn how to save a life, don't be a helpless bystander. Learn what to do. Be the one who helps! Learn to breathe and provide circulation for the "Sudden Death" (cardiac arrest) victim. The Greenbelt Rescue Squad can arrive at the scene of any emergency within five minutes. But, "irreversible brain damage" can occur within four minutes. Learn this basic life support, use it until help arrives.

The Greenbelt CPR Committee and Greenbelt Recreation Department encourages people to learn this life saving technique. Classes are offered to Greenbelt residents free of charge. A nominal fee will be charged to non-residents. Class rosters are limited and pre-registration is required. Call the Recreation Department Business Office weekdays, 9 a.m.-5 p.m. 474-6878 to register. Hours are from 7 p.m.-10:30 p.m. on the dates and locations as follows:

September: Center Elementary, No Class; Springhill Lake Elementary, 17 and 18.

October: Center Elementary, 14 and 15; Springhill Lake Elementary, 22 and 23.

November: Center Elementary, 11 and 12; Springhill Lake Elementary, 19 and 20.

PGCC Classes at SHL

Prince Georges Community College will offer the following schedule of informal courses to be held at the Springhill Lake Community House:

Cake Decorating: Tuesdays, September 23 - October 28, 1 to 3 p.m.; Talk to the Deaf; Wednesdays, September 17 - December 10, 7 to 10 p.m.; Current Issues for Senior Citizens: Thursdays, September 24 to December 4, 1:30 to 3 p.m.; and Relaxation and Stress Control: Thursdays, September 18 - November 20, 8 to 10 p.m.

Registration forms are available at the SHL Community House, 322-0876.

Voter Registration Deadline Nears

October 6 is the last day to register for the November elections. Registration applications must be received on or before that date. There are two methods by which to register: Call the Registration Hotline (627-2814) and give name, address (including zip code). Within 2 to 3 work days a registration card will be mailed to the caller. The second way is to obtain from the Greenbelt Library an application for registration which must be filled in and mailed. A registration card will be sent to the applicant.

To qualify to vote, a registrant must be 18 years old on or before Nov. 4; a resident of the county on the day of application; a U.S. citizen; not convicted of a disqualifying crime; and not under guardianship for mental disability.

The following information must be provided on the voter registration form: name, address, place of birth, age, party affiliation (optional), and signature. If registered in another county or state, the applicant must fill out the bottom of the card in order to cancel the previous registration.

"Owl and Pussy Cat" Opens Friday

by Liz Frey

This Friday, at 8:15 p.m., begins the nine-performance schedule of Bill Manhoff's sophisticated play "The Owl and The Pussycat," presented by the Greenbelt Players, and starring Judy Marshall and Craig Mooring and directed by Janet Schreiber Cripe.

In this comedy a bawdy garrulous "lady of the night" teams up with a pompous avant-garde writer after she is thrown out of her apartment. He becomes obsessed with improving her mind.

She dedicates herself to his emotional growth. Caustic barbs and clever wit fill the air as two mismatched people fall in love.

Judy has appeared at the Utopia Theater as Blanche in "Night Watch" and as a singer and dancer in "A Ticket to Broadway." Her interest in the theater has been active since 1962 when she traveled throughout the State of Maryland performing with the University of Maryland Drama Wing. With a partial scholarship from the Theater Dept. Judy attended the U. of Md., graduated with a B.A. in Speech and Drama, and won The Outstanding Drama Student award in 1973.

This is Craig Mooring's first appearance in Greenbelt, although he is no stranger to the stage. While at St. John's College, Annapolis, he was associated with The King William Players and The Modern Theater Group. After college Craig starred as John Brown's attorney in "The Anvil," a docu-drama of John Brown's Trial performed in the courthouse in which the actual trial occurred.

Speeding Brings Tragedy

To the Editor:

Last week the North End at Ridge Road lost a beloved friend by the name of Brownie. The "man" in the speeding white Ford not only killed Brownie but put another dog in the hospital at the same time. Brownie had a tragic and short life; her original "owners" abandoned her when they left Greenbelt some years ago. After that, she made out the only way she knew how, by begging. She went from door to door for hand-outs which she gratefully received. Her original "owners" also beat her and she was still afraid of people when a kind family in 73 Court took her in. Through them, she learned . . . that some people really love animals. While she lived in 73 Court, she was well loved by all who came in contact with her. But she couldn't beat her old habit of going to see her friends; one could still see Brown Dog going from house to house, checking in to say hello. That's what she was doing the day she was killed and her companion put in the hospital.

As for that male in the speeding white Ford; I can only say I hope you have many sleepless nights. And for the police, don't you think it's about time you did something with speeders? Ridge Road Raceway begins at Research and ends at Lastner and for that short distance, many speed records are broken, many tires squeal, and many people cringe when brakes are heard. It's time to make action speak louder than empty words; especially with school in session and children walking along the road. Will the police wait until a child is hit before doing something?

An Animal Lover.

Dinner Theater Opens

Petrucchi's Main Street Dinner Theatre in Laurel opens its fall season with Jay Allen's comedy "40 Carats." Under the direction of Artistic Director Fay Jacobs, "40 Carats" might best be described as a love story in praise of older women! The show will run Thursday through Sunday, through November 16.

Petrucchi's features a newly expanded International buffet, an all-you-can-eat Antipasto Salad Bar, and a homemade dessert carousel. Call 725-5226 for reservations and information about the season subscription.

Back-to-school Night Tuesday at Roosevelt

GHI Members Sought

To The Editor:

The rehabilitation period is a critical time for GHI. Decisions made now will shape the course of our development in the future. The number and variety of these decisions may require more expertise than a small group of people such as the Board or the managers can handle. In recognition of this fact, the Board has placed renewed emphasis on the standing committees to study those areas of the rehabilitation program as well as other areas where the decision requires additional study or experience. At the membership meetings a number of members have spoken who are contractors, architects, engineers, or simply concerned members. The GHI committees need your help. As the newly-appointed Chairman of the Engineering and Maintenance Committee, I invite you to attend our next meeting at 8 p.m. on Tuesday, September 16, in the GHI Board room. Information concerning the other committees' meeting dates can be obtained by calling GHI.

Greenbelt CARES

Greenbelt CARES is once again in need of dedicated volunteers to tutor youth in the Greenbelt area. The only qualifications are a desire to help young people and a commitment of one hour per week.

In the past, volunteer tutors have found this to be an excellent training group for acquiring new skills and getting to know other community members. CARES is in need of persons who might be willing to donate assistance in Math, English, Social Studies, Science, and other subjects. There will be an orientation for volunteers on September 23 from 7 to 9 p.m. in the CARES' offices. CARES provides training and supervision through monthly meetings.

The tutoring service is available to community youth free of charge. For further information, please call Johnnie Franklin at 345-6660.

Retired Federal Employees

The College Park/Greenbelt Chapter of Retired Federal Employees will meet Wednesday, Sept. 17, at 12 noon in the Municipal Building, Knox Road, College Park.

Dr. Dan Leviton, Professor, Health Education, University of Maryland, will discuss his program, "The Adult's Health and Developmental Program, Towards Health and Well Being."

Jennie L. Gray

Jennie L. Gray, 5H Gardenway, died on Saturday, September 6 in the New Greater Laurel Hospital.

Mrs. Gray, who observed her 78th birthday on September 3, came to Greenbelt in 1938. Later the family moved out of the city but returned and has lived here for the past 14 years. She was active in the Greenbelt American Legion Auxiliary for 36 years and also was a member of the Disabled American Veterans Auxiliary.

Surviving are her husband, Robert R. Gray, of the home address, daughters Shirley Bailey, Greenbelt; and Mary E. Cherry, College Park; son, Robert R. Gray, Riverdale; 11 grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren.

Services were held at the Chapel at Ft. Lincoln Cemetery.

MEETING ON BENEFITS FOR VETERANS SEPT. 19

Detailed explanations of the full range of benefits available to disabled veterans and their families will be presented at an open meeting Friday, September 19, at Greenbelt Center School, beginning at 7:30 p.m. The meeting is sponsored for all veterans and their dependents by George H. Seal Memorial Chapter #23 of the Disabled American Veterans (DAV).

"We're holding this meeting because we're concerned that so many veterans and their dependents aren't aware of the Federal benefits that they're entitled to," said Alton F. Wagner, Chapter Commander. The Chapter is particularly concerned that Vietnam Era veterans are not taking full advantage of the benefits and services they have earned nor of professional assistance available to them free of charge through the DAV. At the meeting, trained veterans benefits experts, including DAV National Service Officers, will be on hand to individually counsel veterans and members of their families.

Greenbelt Ranks Fourth in Expenditures Compared To Nine State Municipalities

by Virginia Beauchamp

A comparative study of Greenbelt's financial standing in relation to eight other Maryland communities whose populations exceed 10,000 was recently prepared by Assistant City Manager Dennis E. Piendak. The study was drawn from tables which Piendak drew up from figures gathered by the Maryland State Department of Fiscal Services and published in a booklet, Local Government Finances in Maryland.

According to a covering letter with his analysis, directed to City Manager James K. Giese, Piendak notes that the figures were collected from a uniform financial report required of all municipalities in the state. It covered the period ending June 30, 1979. Piendak's analysis is limited to cities comparable to Greenbelt in Prince Georges and Montgomery Counties. The eight other cities are: Bowie, College Park, Gaithersburg, Hyattsville, Laurel, New Carrollton, Rockville, and Takoma Park.

Of the nine communities, Greenbelt ranked fifth in estimated population at 19,606. New Carrollton, with 13,125, was smallest and Rockville was largest at 45,608.

Although Greenbelt was only seventh in assessable tax base for FY 1979, it was fourth in the amount of increase (4.6) since the preceding year. Gaithersburg, with 12.1 was highest. (Four of the group—New Carrollton, Hyattsville, Bowie, and College Park—showed assessable base decreases for the same period.) Greenbelt's assessable tax base was $95,177,110. As would be expected, Rockville's was highest with $569,042,846.

Greenbelt was fourth highest among the group of nine cities in the FY 79 tax rate. Piendak attributed this fact to two causes: (1) the high level of police services for this city and (2) the smaller size of the assessable tax base.

Two cities with lower tax rates have no police departments, two have only minor police expenditures, and the fifth, Hyattsville, spent only $409,853 as compared to Greenbelt's $614,157 for police services.

The size of the assessable tax base, Piendak notes, has a "direct relation" to tax rate. While Hyattsville's tax rate ($.90) was lower than Greenbelt's ($.97), the former's larger assessable base produced about $44,000 more in revenue than Greenbelt's.

Greenbelt's ratio of bonded debt (0.9%) was fourth among seven municipalities that reported debt. The range was from 0.03% (New Carrollton) to 5.4 (Rockville). Both Hyattsville and Gaithersburg reported no bonded debt.

The range for net bonded debt per capita was similar, with New Carrollton's lowest at $2, Rockville's highest at $672 and Greenbelt's in fourth place at $43.

Revenues

Six communities collected more local property taxes than Greenbelt. In FY 79 local property taxes accounted for 36.7% of Greenbelt's total revenue. New Carrollton, Bowie, College Park and Rockville all showed a lower percentage. Piendak noted, however, that Bowie's water system and College Park's urban renewal program brought in federal grant money and service charges. Rockville also received federal monies. Total revenues from such sources for the three cities ranged from 35.5% to 61.9%, as compared with only 13.4% for Greenbelt in that year.

Greenbelt was fourth in the amount of income tax received in FY 79 but last in other state shared taxes—a circumstance resulting from Greenbelt's low street mileage as compared to the other municipalities. Street mileage is closely related to highway user revenues, Piendak noted.

In Federal Revenue Sharing, Greenbelt ranked eighth.

Expenditures

Only New Carrollton was below Greenbelt in expenditures for general government services. But the New Carrollton figure represents 14.9% of total expenditures, as contrasted with Greenbelt's 10.8%. (Piendak did not provide percentage figures for the other cities.)

Although Greenbelt was third, behind only Rockville and Takoma Park, in expenditures for public safety, the Greenbelt figure included the one-time expense for funding for the new addition to the Fire House.

As previously noted, Greenbelt, ranking third, also carries relatively higher costs for police protection. Per capita police expenditures ranged from lows of $3.48 (New Carrollton) and $3.81 (Gaithersburg) to a high of $38.04 (Takoma Park). The Greenbelt figure is $31.32.

Greenbelt's expenditure for public works—$535,376—was next lowest to New Carrollton's. Greenbelt's costs for public works were lower than expenditures for both public safety and recreation and parks. (In six of the other cities, public works expenditures exceeded those for the other two categories.) Greenbelt's recreation and parks expenditures were third highest among the nine cities. Rockville spent $68.17 per capita, Gaithersburg $31 and Greenbelt $28.84—three times more than Laurel which, like Greenbelt (but unlike the others), is not in the MNCPPC Park District.

In general, Piendak's report concluded, Greenbelt "appears to compare favorably," being "generally . . . above average." When expenditures for public works, public safety, recreation and parks, and general government services are taken together, Greenbelt is fourth from the top—between Rockville's $290.73 per capital expenditure and New Carrollton's $65.85. The Greenbelt figure is $107.67.

Protection Agency had to certify that plans for the plant met standards of the Water Pollution Control Act. Dr. Solomon had to give State authorization for construction of the plant.

In addition, the District Council (the then County Commissioners sitting as a zoning body) okayed a change in the original site plan for the development to include the treatment plant, even though the change violated the County's green-space zoning regulations. The County Board of Appeals then reconfirmed the approval decision after city opposition and that of the Prince Georges Environmental Coalition, a citizens' group, had been filed.

Following a substantial payment by the Greenbriar developers to WSSC in August 1974 for tests, insurance, and labor, and following a 10-day operational test in September, WSSC approved the plant on October 9, 1974.

After the first residents moved into Greenbriar, the subject of the sewage treatment plant disappeared from the city council agenda and the pages of the News Review until January 1976. At that time, although the plant's operation had been declared "excellent" and the moratorium was still in effect, WSSC was urged to approve its dismantling and the permanent connection of Greenbriar to the public Western Branch system. This was possible because of an interim chemical treatment process that provided additional sewage capacity.

New Pumping Station Planned

In connection with the conversion from the private plant to the hook-up with the public system, WSSC had been planning construction of a public pumping station to serve Greenbriar and other nearby vacant land in the same drainage basin. Cost estimates were from $750,000 to $1,000,000—three-fourths of which would be charged to the Greenbriar developers. To avoid these costs, Kay, supported by the city, requested WSSC to forego construction of the new facility. He also wanted WSSC either to take over the present pumping station or permit Greenbriar to continue its operation as a private facility. The city was consistent in pressing for the pumping station to be brought into the public system.

Rehabilitation Brief

by Pat Estel
GHI Rehab Coordinator

Biggest news of the week is the possibility of a change from the mineral siding to vinyl siding on the frame homes. There have been problems with the mineral siding now being used both in the material itself and in its installation. GHI will meet with the Maryland Historical Trust and the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation to inform them of these problems and to seek a change. The Historical Trust has maintained that mineral siding of a similar texture to the original asbestos siding must be used. If a change to vinyl siding is approved, notice will be sent to members asking again for color choice.

Additions

Many members think that their expression of interest in having work done on their additions when they filled out their rehabilitation letters authorized the work's being done. This is not so. There will be a letter sent to these members with additions which will give GHI the go-ahead to do the work. The letter will explain payment conditions. It should be understood that this work will be paid for by the member involved.

Air Conditioner Sleeves

Sleeves for air conditioners should be built into the wall before any insulation is blown into the side walls. If done afterwards, the insulation will be knocked out.

Members with rehab questions may call me at 474-2300.

News Review article, WSSC was willing to allow private operation of the facility, provided certain modifications were made to the plant and provided the plant was "operated and maintained permanently at no expense to WSSC."

In the words of News Review reporter Al Skolnik, "This, in effect, meant that present and future condominium owners at Greenbriar would pay the costs of the pumping station, including future replacement."

Greenbriar's temporary sewage treatment plant itself was closed in early April 1976, but is still on-site. If Kay is unable to sell the plant, it will be dismantled.

—Also contributing to this article was Elaine Skolnik.

P.G. SURVEYING DISABLED ADULTS

In 1978, the Maryland General Assembly mandated that the Maryland State Department of Health and Mental Hygiene conduct a statewide survey to obtain information on the service needs of nonretarded developmentally disabled (NRDD) adults. United Cerebral Palsy of Prince Georges County is the agency responsible for the survey's implementation in Prince Georges County. The information gathered from this survey will be used to determine the needs of NRDD persons so that appropriate services can be planned and funded.

nic handicap related to a mental or physical impairment or both. Such a handicap greatly interferes with an individual's capacity for independent living. Many social and educational services are designed for mentally retarded persons and may not be proper for NRDD individuals.

The survey, which began July 1, 1980, will run through September 30. For further information or to obtain a copy of the survey form, write United Cerebral Palsy of Prince Georges County, 3901 Woodhaven Lane, Bowie, Md. 20715 or call 262-4993.

Q107 Battles Journey T-Shirts for Watchers

Recently the City of Greenbelt hosted a softball game between the Radio Station QXR, Q-107, and the popular rock band, Journey, on Braden Field. More than 2,000 cheering spectators came out to watch the game and receive a free Q-107 T-shirt along with sodas from the Dr. Pepper van. Mayor Gil Weidenfeld was on hand to welcome the enthusiastic spectators and introduce the teams.

Journey's team was composed of members of the band and stage crew. When time allows, between their busy concert schedule, they challenge games with various radio stations around the country. Going into this game, the band was undefeated, with a 14-0 record.

The game, broadcast live on radio, started with Journey's taking a commanding lead. However, the Q-Team chipped away at the lead and eventually, in nine innings, won the game 15-14.
